PET Bottles

Four photographic portraits of PET bottles. bottles is situated in the centre of the frame background. The bottles do not have any lake regular, one-and-a-half litre plastic bottles which, shops, on pavements and in other places. advantage is the possibility of re-using them – a grand-style utilisation or a private ‘reclamator’ use the bottle, for instance, for watering our plants, taking some drink in it when we go for a walk, win a child (then, however, we prefer smaller-sized bottles).

The reclamation of the contents / Refill. For values

The contents of the bottles vary in each case. This is indicated by the different colours of liquids filling the bottles – the body-like wavy, pinkish, greenish or bluish colours. What do the vessels contain? Probably, there are washing liquids, glistening with torpid shine. Yes, but someone has scribbled FAITH FAITH FAITH on the blue bottle, HOPE is scratched three times on the green one (Hope in a green garment?) and the letters on the pink bottle timidly say LOVE LOVE LOVE. Faith, Hope and Love once met in St. Paul’s letter to the Corinthians (13:13). Love was bestowed with supremacy among the three. Yet they are separated on the photographs, their latent values which are not fully recognised. Each is in triplicate, deprived of its power – an empty word, an echo instead of an incantation.
